4 / 2026

Fund commentary

Santander GO DBF returned 0.86% in the month of April.

April saw a recovery in market sentiment as geopolitical tensions stabilized, and strong earnings supported a rebound in risk appetite. While the US-Iran conflict remained a key focus, signs of de-escalation helped ease market stress, although elevated oil prices kept inflation concerns alive and reinforced a “higher-for-longer” rate backdrop. Central banks stayed on hold, balancing resilient economic data with ongoing uncertainty. Against this backdrop, both equities and bonds delivered positive returns, with global equities rebounding strongly, led by the U.S. and emerging markets, while fixed income posted modest gains. The U.S. dollar weakened as defensive positioning unwound, and while energy outperformed, precious metals declined. Overall, April highlighted improving resilience, though markets remain sensitive to geopolitical developments and inflation risks.
